AADHAAR IN DIRECT BENEFIT TRANSFER (DBT)

To achieve targeted delivery of welfare services in a more transparent and efficient manner, the Government of India had launched Direct Benefit Transfer (DBT) to transfer cash benefits under various welfare schemes directly into beneficiaries' Aadhaar-linked bank accounts in 2013. To promote financial inclusion, PM Jan-Dhan Yojana (PMJDY) was launched in campaign mode in 2014-15. Nearly 54 Crore bank accounts were opened under PMJDY. Universal spread of bank accounts in the country, combined with the power of DBT has brought marginalized sections of the society into the formal financial system, which has revolutionized the path of transparent and accountable governance by empowering the people.

DBT has also led to enormous savings to the public exchequer by virtue of Aadhaar-led cleansing of scheme databases through removal of duplicate and non-existent beneficiaries.

AADHAAR: AN OVERVIEW

An ID Solution: Towards Inclusive Sustainable Development, Aadhaar, the 12-digit unique ID, has given a perspective of identification to empower people in such a manner that no one is left behind on the path of development. It has ensured transparent and targeted delivery of services, benefits, and subsidies within the available resources sans middlemen.

Aadhaar inspires more confidence and trust between person-to-person and person-to-system and vice versa than any other identity document available at population scale in India. In the time span of just over a decade, almost every sixth person in the World residing in India is an Aadhaar holder.

As an all-inclusive identity solution, Aadhaar has facilitated transparent and targeted delivery, trusted services and accountable governance.

No doubt, Aadhaar has brought a bit of digital revolution in the life of every Aadhaar number holder.
